Hello Again. Here is the official event of the day.

First goal is the taking of "attendance" which is short for who is receiving. Just so you know this is not official attendance. There is no official attendance! I have found an easier way for me to do this which require you to fill out a daily form. The form should be readable on any computer and you phone as well. Very convenient. Please do this first and then return to the remainder of the instructions here.

It is important that this link and response works for you because this is the form by which I will manage most future OPEN BOOK evaluations.

The goal today is to repeat the work from yesterday and be ready for a quiz tomorrow. The quiz will have ten circumstances that you need to identify as exothermic or endothermic, similar to the enthalphy game questions that are online.

The entry on the website from yesterday in the thermodynamics unit is all you need. Now for the video links to youtube. Hope this works. I will likely be asked to migrate future videos to "Teams", but for now lets go with this. There are two videos because I accidentally pressed the stop instead of the pause button.

The quality of the video could be better. I have added links to pictures I have taken of the notes. It is however of benefit to see the talk and write aspect in the video. Enjoy. Or at least enjoy as much as possible!
